September 2015's monthly index of economic activity, IMACEC

According to preliminary information, last September the IMACEC rose 2.6% over the same month a year before. The seasonally-adjusted series increased 1.1% with respect to the previous month, and increased 2.5% in twelve months. The month came with one more working day than September 2014.

The result reflected, mainly, higher value added from services and manufacturing.

According to the calendar for the disclosure of National Accounts, together with preliminary GDP results for the third quarter, and the revisions to first- and second-quarter figures, will be published next 18 November.
